Speed, Crit Damage and Effectiveness are all Furious needs to do his job properly, though some Attack helps as well with supporting DPS during the Wyvern's Shield Phase. Building Critical Chance is also okay, since he will need around 50% to reach 100% after using Morale Boost (S2). Song Of Stars is recommended for an additional debuff to count towards reducing Wyvern fireball spits and increasing damage by 15%. If this isn't available, the tried and true Daydream Joker also serves him well. Note about Equipment The Onix Wyvern has 70% Effect Res, so building too much Effectiveness can be overkill (keep in mind the innate 15% every opponent has, though-- see here for details on the resistance formula.) Once Furious has enough Eff% and around ~50% Crit Chance, consider investing into Attack and Crit Damage instead. With Fatal Bullet (S3) fully enhanced, you need only 70% Effectiveness to land consistent Defense Breaks. With S3 at +0, you'll need 95% Effectiveness. For PvP opponents with 100% or more Effect Res-- the sky is the limit. Spd CritD % Eff % Speed Critical Early Mid Late 0 0 0 +1 +1 +3 +6 +6 Since Furious thoroughly covers Defense Break on his own, other teammates should focus on damage and applying additional debuffs. "Now in its 11th year, Vivid Sydney has always been at the cutting edge of innovation, original thinking, art, and new technology. We encourage artists and creative contributors to present new ideas and methods of achieving their vision to provide inspiration, education, and entertainment," says executive producer Sandra Chipchase. "It's where art, commerce, and technology intersect--and it showcases Sydney as our nation's creative hub, as well as a visually stunning destination." The three-week festival will light up Australia's biggest city from May 24 through June 15, 2019--an irresistible prospect, especially when paired with an extended sojourn in and around Sydney. Photo by Destination NSW | Vivid Sydney cruise sailing past the Sydney Opera House The state of New South Wales is a microcosm of Australia, with gorgeous beaches, epic scenery, vibrant culture and nightlife, fantastic food and wine, and a host of other sights and activities to build a trip around. There has never been a better time to experience all it has to offer--and not just because of Vivid Sydney. Right now the exchange rate for the Australian dollar against the U.S. is at a record low. (And with many events at the festival being free of charge, you'll have even more dollars to spare.) United Airlines offers nonstop Dreamliner service to Sydney, three times a day from L.A., San Francisco, and Houston. Add that to your list of compelling reasons to make this the year you experience Australia--and its most spectacular festival. This content can also be viewed on the site it originates from. With more than a decade under its belt, Vivid Sydney was born out of the desire to share the brilliance of light art with the general public and keep the tourist economy humming during the region's cooler (but still temperate) autumn season. It has grown to become the largest festival of its kind in the Southern Hemisphere, winning numerous awards along the way. The festival is built around three pillars: Vivid Light, Vivid Music, and Vivid Ideas. Vivid Ideas showcases compelling one-on-one discussions, panels, and debates with major thought leaders and changemakers from across all disciplines; this year's just-announced roster includes maverick filmmaker Spike Lee and celebrated author/relationship expert Esther Perel. Vivid Music will rock the city with a diverse line-up of artists including British alt-rock pioneers The Cure, electronic titans Underworld, and genre-bending pop diva FKA Twigs. Photo by Destination NSW | 1000 Cranes light installation at First Fleet Park, Sydney Vivid Light may be the most distinctive component of all, with innovative artists from around the world--this year including LA-based artist/filmmaker Andre Thomas Huang--using the city's streets and landmarks as their canvas, illuminating the night sky in spectacular ways. Around every corner is another reason to look up, look around, and engage with the city, from towering projections dancing across the famous sails of the Sydney Opera House to enchanting light sculptures and installations lighting parks and paths to street performances, interactive games, pop-up food stalls, and more. Want to be part of the light show? Vivid Bridge Climb invites thrill-seekers to scale the iconic Harbour Bridge in a special flashing vest, then dance under the stars on a lit-up dance floor. Photo by Destination NSW | May Gibbs' Snugglepot and Cuddlepup artwork projected on Customs House, Sydney You could say the nightly light show alone is worth the price of admission--except that this festival, unlike most of its kind, is predominantly free and open to the public, with just a handful of ticketed events. "From the start, our aim has been to use the city as our canvas and make the art accessible to everyone," says Chipchase. "We want visitors to discover our exciting music scene and be challenged by local and international thought leaders." Judging from the number of ecstatic visitors--more than 2.25 million last year--it looks like they have hit the bullseye. Before or after experiencing Vivid Sydney, there is so much to do just outside the city or within a few hours' scenic drive or train ride. Many travelers who dream of going to Australia put it off until some idealized future date, because they worry that they won't have enough time to do it justice. What makes New South Wales a destination for right now is that it offers the full package of iconic Aussie experiences in one manageable trip that needn't break the bank or consume your whole vacation calendar. Photo by MJK Creative | Bistro Molines in Mount View, Hunter Valley Start with a trip to Australia's oldest wine region, only two hours' drive from Sydney. The Hunter Valley will have you sighting over the gorgeous scenery even before you've sampled any of the award-winning wines. Opportunities for cellar visits, tastings, and wine classes abound; you can also float blissfully above it all in a hot-air balloon. It's the color produced by the vast eucalyptus forests that give the Blue Mountains their name--and the sight of the hazy blue peaks is unforgettable, whether viewed from a rugged cliff-top lookout or a glass-enclosed cable car suspended over a breathtaking gorge. There are numerous ways to explore this UNESCO World Heritage site, from day hikes to rock-climbing and abseiling. However you approach it, don't miss the opportunity to learn about the region's ancient Aboriginal heritage. It's inseparable from the beauty of the land and integral to understanding Australia. Photo by Destination NSW | Blue Mountains National Park Also integral to the Aussie experience? Going to the beach. And on this front, New South Wales gives you plenty of options. The North Coast, a short flight or scenic drive from Sydney, is full of tempting attractions, from the boho-chic beach town of Byron Bay to Fort Stephens, where dolphin and whale sighting is among the pressing items on the agenda. The Central Coast, between Sydney and Newcastle (NSW's second-largest city), also offers plenty of wildlife spotting, not to mention the chance to ride the world's longest zipline. Sydney's Palm Beach will soon be featured in a movie of the same name starring Bryan Brown, Sam Neill, Greta Scacchi, and Richard E. Grant. Photo by Destination NSW | Main Beach, Wollongong Travel a bit further to discover hauntingly beautiful outback regions, with scenery you might recognize from Mad Max and countless other films. Venture into this iconic landscape, whether by exploring the historic mining towns of Broken Hill and Silverton or on a safari tour of Mungo National Park, and you will imbibe so much of what there is to love about Australia--its epic size, stunning beauty, irrepresible spirit, and fascinating history. Photo by Destination NSW | Mungo National Park If, after all of these enticements, the length of the flight to Australia still gives you pause, consider this: United's Economy Plus option gives you the extra legroom that can make all the difference on a long-haul flight, plus seats closer to the front of the cabin. (Flying Economy Plus earns you Premier-qualifying dollars, too.) Upgrade even further to United Polaris business class and you'll be tucking into luxurious custom bedding, created in partnership with Saks Fifth Avenue, so you can really hit the ground running after enjoying the best sleep in the sky. Across all classes of service on the Dreamliner to Sydney, United sweetens the ride with a thoughtful food and beverage menu, and a fantastic variety of on-demand entertainment, from hit HBO TV programs to select shorts from the Tribeca Film Festival. Photo by United Airlines Vivid Sydney 2019 is just around the corner. Get yourself there, and all the wonders of New South Wales will be just around the corner, too.
